They Stand Alone.

Standing out in bold relief, all alone, as a complete remedy for frank and honest dealing with the afflicted, are Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, over-worked, debilitated, nervous, "run-down," pale-faced women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous remedy for weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness, all catarrhal affections of the stomach, bowels, bladder, nasal passage, throat, bronchia, or other important passages, also as an effective remedy for all diseases arising from thin, watery or impure blood, as scrofulous and skin affections.

Each bottle of the above medicines bears upon its wrapper a badge of honesty in the full list of ingredients containing it—printed in plain English.
This frank and open publicity places these medicines in a class all by themselves, and is the best guaranty of their merits. They cannot be classed as patent or secret medicines for they are neither —being of known composition.

Dr. Pierce feels that he can afford to take the afflicted into his full confidence and lay all the ingredients of his medicines fully before them. Therefore, these ingredients are such as are endorsed and most strongly praised by scores of the most eminent medical writers as cures for the diseases for which these medicines are recommended. Therefore, the afflicted do not have to rely alone upon Dr. Pierce's recommendation as to the curative value of his medicines for certain easily recognized diseases.

A glance at the printed formula on each bottle will show that no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines, they being wholly compounded of glyceric extracts of the roots of native American forest plants. These are best and safest for the cure of most lingering, chronic diseases. Dr. E. V. Pierce can be consulted privately by addressing him at Buffalo, N. Y., and all communications are respected as strictly confidential.
It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr.
Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicine sell them.

Two Types of Biographical Writing

It is an interesting fact in the history of literary genres that two of the great biographies of biographical writing occur almost side by side. It is that a decade apart, the completion of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets" from the publication of his own life by Boswell. Yet with the latter book a new type of biography came into being. Johnson in the main, had, like most of his predecessors, followed a simple narrative and expository method, prefixing a plain story of the poet's life to a systematic account of his character and a critical estimate of his works. He gathered his facts and impressions together and spoke for the author and for himself. Boswell, on the other hand making use of a more dramatic method, succeeded in his attempt to let the author reveal himself, and, instead of an exposition of character, painted a picture of personality to which his own comments were subordinate. What we see as a type of mind and character in Johnson's work we see as a living man in Boswell—William T. Brewster in Forum.

Wine Girl.

Now, there was a certain girl, and she had three wooers. The first wooer said she was the whole world to him, but she frowned upon his suit. The second wooer said she was the sun, moon and stars to him, but she told him he was his way.

"My me," said the third, "you are a young woman of agreeable manners, with eyes that might be a little bluer, with a nose that is a wee bit puggy and with a few freckles and an annoying habit of blurring out your thoughts."

She married the third wooer. Being puzzled for an explanation of her conduct, she said:

"My goodness! I think I was sensible. I married the only one that had courage enough to tell me of my faults before marriage, instead of waiting to throw them up to me afterward."— Life.

Blasphemy of Seditious.

Too many people who are well bred in nearly every other respect are guilty of the seditious—in all it by the millions—of cutting up their salad on the plate. Of course salad has sometimes to be refused to lower dinner dignity, so to speak. It need not be done by the wholesale or quite in the entirety. The fashion practiced by some of dining a little in one hand and a fork in the other, then washing up the fork in the green stuff with a vigorous nose of a dishcloth is a most desirable and the faulted one are converted into sheets of gold and silver. There is commonsense in the convention that prohibits such a course. Nearly all green salads are broken into pieces of convenient size before sending to the table. Even when these are too large the leaf should be quietly divided with a fork.

Famous Boys.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineers gazed at as wonderful.
He was the great artist Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said, "That boy will beat me some day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood and thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now this will never do. I get too much excited over it. I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" And he hung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.

Monkeys Have No Fleas.

It is curious that monkeys should be thought to be infested with what naturalists call the Pulex irritans and what ordinary people know as the flea. As every zoologist is aware, monkeys have neither fleas nor any other parasite whatsoever, in which of course they differ vastly from man. As a matter of fact, when monkeys begin to pick each other about in the friendly way we have all observed they merely detach bits of hardened sebaceous matter which has been excreted by the glands, and the flea idea is entirely fabulous.

Her Sun Spots.

Sir Robert Ball on one occasion, after delivering a lecture on "Sun Spots and Solar Chemistry," met a young lady who expressed her regret that she had missed hearing him on the previous evening. "Well, you see," he said, "I don't know that it would have interested you particularly, as it was all about sun spots." "Why," she replied, "it would have interested me extremely, for I have been a martyr to freckles all my life."

Two Epitaphs.

An epitaph from a cemetery in Bridg-ton, Me.:
She was—words are too feeble to tell what.
Think what a wife should be:
She was all that.

This from Bar Harbor, Me.:

I reach my arms out fondly, But they clasp the open air.
There is nothing of my darling But the shoes he used to wear.

The Good and Beautiful.

To see the good and the beautiful and to have no strength to live it is only to be Moses on the mountain of Nebo, with the land at your feet and no power to enter. It would be better not to see it.—Olive Schreiner.

Cheerful.

Hook-Jones is the most melancholy fellow I know. Hook—I should think so, indeed. He proposed to a girl once by asking her how she would like to be his widow.

Solved His Chance.

Miss Prim-In Florida do they have er they have snow, darling.—Cleveland Leader.

A deep, genuine sincerity is the first

A Sailor on Sea Pictures.

"I'll take a sailor along with me the next time I buy a marine painting," said a millionaire. "I bought the man three last month, and yesterday my old friend Captain Baltimore had a look at him."

"Sailor?" said:

"In this first picture we've got a trading schooner in charge of a tug towing away from a rock bound coast through a fearful jungle of sea. The schooner's masthead is gone, and all sails are lowered except her stay-sail, which is kept hoisted, though she is towing head on to the gale. Why that I cannot say. All hands, I suppose, are drunk."

"In the second picture," continued Captain Baltimore, "the principal boat, an elegant motor, is racing, yet has no flag flying. That's as incorrect as it could be for you to go to a dinner party minus a shirt. The crew of this boat are sitting in the spinaker, and, if they lower away, both spinaker and boom will be in the water, for they have neglected to let the boom go forward. But I know what the trouble is with them. They, too, are drunk."—St.
Louis Globe-Democrat.

His Visit to the Earl.

There is a well known English bishop who writes a very bad hand. This bad hand caused a sad error to happen some years ago. A young clergyman had written to the bishop to inquire about a vacant curacy, and the reply that the young man got informed him that the curacy was small and the work difficult. But there was one mitigating circumstance. The incumbent, among his other duties, would visit the curate every morning and spend two hours there. The curate would have rejected the post but for the daily visit to the earl. That attracted him. There would, no doubt, be told himself, be many fashionable dinners to which he would naturally be invited. He would make many friends among the rich and powerful. These friends would be able to help him in his career. The earl, perhaps, had daughters. One of them —who knows?—stranger things had happened. And so the curate accepted the difficult and poorly paid curacy to discover on his first visit to the town that he had misread the bishop's letter and that his daily two hours' visit was not to the earl, but to the jail.

Ingersoll on Napoleon.

A little while ago I stood by the grave of the great Napoleon—a magnificent tomb of gilt and gold. I saw him take an empire by the nose of his genius.
I saw him upon the battlefield of Waterloo, when chance and fate combined to wreck the fortunes of the former king, and I saw him at St.
Helena with his hands cuffed behind him, gazing out at the sad and stormy sea. I thought of the orphaned son widowed he had made, of the bones that had been shed for his glory, and of the only woman who had ever loved him pushed from his heart by the cruel hand of ambition, and I said I would rather have been a French peasant in worn wooden shoes. I would rather have been that poor peasant with my loving wife by my side, knitting as the day died out in the skies, with my child dron upon my knees and their arms about me. I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongue-less silence of the dreamless dust than to have been that hygienic impersonation of force and murder known as Napoleon the Great.—Woman's Home Companion.

Blowing the Nose.

Medical experts are calling the attention of the public to the importance of performing the nose blowing operation in a scientific and hygienic manner.
First one nostril and then the other should be blown without undue violence. Doctors state that the two nasal passages should never be closed at the same time. If they are obstructed, as in the case of a cold, the back of the throat is filled with compressed air and this, together with the discharge and the microbes which it contains, may be driven through the eustachian tube into the middle ear and lead to serious results. A great authority on the subject used to forbid his patients to blow their noses when suffering from a cold. The course is hardly one which will commend itself to those in the habit of catching colds. The best advice would seem to be that when it is necessary to blow the nose the blowing should be done gently.—London Mail.

A Crazy Wit.

A contemporary states that while a wedding breakfast was being held in a restaurant at Presnes les Houtais a naval officer in uniform entered the room and was invited to preside over the feast. He made himself very agreeable, sang songs and delivered speeches.
He was proposing the bride's health when two policemen rushed in and arrested him as an escaped lunatic from a watching asylum. It is further asserted that he thereupon politely turned to the officers and said: "I think you have made a mistake, gentlemen.
There"—pointing to the bridegroom—"is the man you want."—London Tribune.

Unconquered to Sing at Work.

At the works of a firm of soap makers in England the girl employees are encouraged to sing part songs while at work. The object is to relieve the monotony. In the departments that number more than thirty girls and have not noisy machinery they are encouraged to sing during the last hour of work in the morning and the afternoon.

A Joke.

The other day a benevolent old gentleman was stopped by a tramp, who asked for money for a night's lodging.
"Well, look here, my man," the old gentleman said, "what would you say if I offered you work?" "Bless yer life, sir," came the reply, "I wouldn't mind a bit. I can take a joke same as most people."

ence a hissing sound in my ears. What does not change 'abit.' If you take off another letter you still have a 'bit' left.

If you take off still another the whole of it remains. If you take off another it is not totally used up. All of which goes to show that if you want to get rid of habit you must throw it off alto-

The Changeless Moon.

Under existing conditions—and the conditions have existed on the surface of the moon for perhaps millions of years—it is a physical impossibility that the face of the moon should change one iota. There are neither outside nor inside influences that can be brought to bear to make a change in the configuration of "our silvery sister world." Her internal fires have long since died out and there is an utter absence of both fire and water.
Existing under such conditions, it is utterly impossible that the face of the moon should undergo a change or disintegration in the course of a hundred million years.

Pronunciation.

There is a story that Tennyson, hearing at a dinner party somebody pronouncing knowledge with a long o, jumped up from the table, rushed at his fellow guest and shook hands with him. "Among the faithless faithful, he" he exclaimed, and he proceeded to denounce in vehement terms the iniquitous mispronunciation of the English language. It is remembered that a greater English poet—Byron, to wit—did not agree with him, as a couplet in "Don Juan" shows:

No, no; I'd send him out butness to college,
For there it was I picked up my own knowledge.

Lightning Flashes.

A four inch black disk, marked with a white cross and rotating fifty to sixty times a second, has been used by a German at night for studying lightning flashes. Some flashes caused the cross to appear once, others brought it out several times, and repeated observations confirmed the view that the discharge is very variable. The duration of some seemed to be about the one-thousandth part of a second. Others were shorter, and some were evidently not more than a thirty-five thousandth part of a second.

Republican Editors Standing Loyally by Their Party.

a magnificent line of reform laws as to call for the special commendation of President Roosevelt is past our comprehension.

Are Growing Desperate.

The leaders and organs of the fusion candidates in this state and particularly in this district and county, are growing desperate, remarks the editor of the Washington Observer. They see defeat staring them in the face. They see the sentiment growing stronger daily for the Republican ticket and the Republican principles. They are using desperate tactics in a desperate cause. Falsehoods and misrepresentations are following each other in quick succession. Their methods of attack are despicable and have turned many who were formerly in sympathy with them to the support of the Republican ticket. The Republican party and its candidates are conducting a clean, decent campaign. They are making votes. The issues are clearly presented and the people are beginning to see most clearly the motives which characterize the attacks on decent men—because they are Republicans. The refusal of many of the Democrats to swallow the hybrid ticket in the district and in the county is also making the leaders desperate, and like Hearst, of New York, they are beginning to call men of their own party vile names. Keep it up, this better it will be for the Republican party. It makes votes—because it disgusts honest and decent voters.

Must Be Harmony For Results.

We submit that the Republican Governor with a Republican legislature can produce more substantive legislation than a fusion governor with the same legislature, says the editor of the Titusville Herald. Excellence in the administration of state affairs demands harmony, which can exist only through the election of Edwin S. Stuart to the Governor's chair.

A Manly Statement.

Governor Pennypacker's frank and manly statement in regard to the expenditures for the state capitol is convincing enough in itself to all candid citizens, that not a single dollar has been wasted or misappropriated, says the editor of the Oil City Derrick. But Mr. Stuart, who is in no way connected with the building of the structure, has promised to take the question up and will give it full investigation. In his speech at Greenville he added the following plank to the Republican party platform:

"If elected Governor, I promise you, fully realizing the responsibility resting upon me, that I will see that a thorough investigation shall be made of the entire question, and if such investigation discloses that any man or set of men have been guilty of wrong-doing in the abuse of their trust, or guilty of fraud or illegal profit in the furnishing of supplies, they shall meet with the punishment they surely, under such circumstances, would justly deserve."

This should be fully satisfactory to those who have been disposed to question the action of the building committee in expending such immense sums in furnishing and decorating the capitol. But it is clear that the members did not exceed their powers, and that they were acting in strict accord with the law. Ten years hence, when the fame of this magnificent building becomes more general and the work of these men becomes better recognized, what they did for the people in giving them a capitol, worthy the honor and dignity of the state, will be pointed at as the proudest achievement of their lives.

The Overshadowing Issue.

It will not do for opponents of the Republican state ticket to plead for voters on the theory that the election of next November is important as to this year only, exclaims the editor of the Brockwayville Record. This is the direct and immediate question, but 1908 presents the overshadowing issue. No sincere Republican wants a Democrat sent to the White House two years from now. Some Republicans who claim to be sincere say that they will vote this year for Emery, the Democratic nominee, against Stuart, the Republican candidate for Governor, and when they vote for Emery they line up for the whole Democratic state ticket. Yet it is axiomatic that you can't contribute to the election of a Republican President by electing the Democratic tickets in the several states. Politics don't operate that way. Judge Parker, the last Democratic candidate, since the election of 1904, has repeatedly said that the way to put a Democrat in the White House is to carry the smaller political divisions, the township, the ward, the city, the county and then the state.

That is the way to do it, and if the true and loyal Republicans of Pennsylvania want to elect a Republican in 1908 for President, they must not make the mistake this year of fortifying Democratic strength by voting for the Democratic nominee for Governor. To do that is to invite a Democratic triumph and Democratic victory in the nation is sure to spell disaster.
